Draft policy could affect large number

by Cathy Gregory

The "majority" of Eastern's students may be affected by recent Supreme Court action requiring proof of draft registration from the recipients of some types of federally-funded financial aid, Sue McKenna, Eastern's financial aid director, said.

On Jan. 21, Secretary of Education T.H. Bell announced that the draft registration requirement, which was signed into law by President Ronald Reagan on Sept. 8, 1982, would go into effect on July 1.

A suit was then filed by the Minnesota Civil Liberties Union in the U.S. District Court of Minnesota questioning the constitutionality of the law.

Duncan Helmrich, Public Affairs Specialist for the U.S. Department of Education, said U.S. District Judge Donald Alsop issued an injunction to keep the law from going into effect on the basis of self-incrimination. On June 24 the Supreme Court put a stay on Alsop's injunction making the law effective on July 1.

Helmrich said the stay will "probably" be appealed by the people of Minnesota, but added that "no action has been taken as of yet."

McKenna said Tuesday that almost 7,000 Eastern students received some type of financial aid last year. "Not all students receiving aid will be affected, though," she added.

Any student receiving assistance from Pell Grant, Supplemental Grant, College Work-Study, National Direct Student Loan, Guaranteed Student/Plus Loan or the Illinois State Scholarship Commission will be affected by the compliance requirement, McKenna said.

These types of aid are classified under Title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965, which allocates money for post-secondary education and student financial assistance.

"There are other types of financial aid available other than those listed under Title IV, but most of the dollars are behind the Title IV programs," she added. "The majority of students receiving assistance get

'Pippin's' popularity prompts an encore

by Sue Oiler Miller

Eastern's summer production "Pippin" has been held over for one more performance, J. Sain, the play's promotion and management director, said Wednesday.

The popularity of the production, which has been sold out nightly, called for another show, Sain said.

The last performance "Pippin" will be at 8 p.m., Thursday, he added.

Senior Rex Rund will portray the title character in the encore performance, Sain said.

There are no reserved seats for Thursday's performance, Sain said.

"If you get here at 7 p.m. when the doors open, you'll get the seat of your choice," he said.

Tickets for Thursday's performance are available at the Fine Arts Center ticket office from 1 to 5 p.m. or an hour prior to the production's start Thursday.

In addition, Sain said, "We're still looking for volunteer ushers. These six to eight will get to see the show for free."

He added anyone interested in ushering should stop by the Fine Arts Center ticket office during box office hours or contact him at 581-3110.

Controversy lingers

Wickham resigns from city council

by Sharon Bray

Finance Commissioner Jim Wickham resigned Tuesday from his position on the Charleston City Council.

Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer read Wickham's letter of resignation during a special council meeting Tuesday.

Wickham's letter stated that while the controversy surrounding his appointment had been "laid to rest" by the courts, he believed doubt about the legality of his appointment might still exist.

Wickham, who is an executive with Illinois Consolidated Telephone Company, was appointed to the finance commissioner's position following the resignation of Mayor Bob Hickman.

A snag in Wickham's March 11 appointment arose when officials discovered Illinois statutes that noted utility company officials may not take elected positions.

On June 28, a Coles County Circuit Court judge dismissed a petition that would have determined the legality of the appointment. Wickham said he believed that the dismissal of the petition proved that his appointment was legal.

Pfeiffer said, "He had no idea there would be such a controversy, but he wanted to stay on until it was proved that the appointment was legal."

Wickham, who did not attend the meeting, said Tuesday, "I feel it is in the city's best interest that I submit my immediate resignation."

Wickham said a lot of pressure surrounded his appointment and added that he began thinking about what he should do when the controversy over his appointment arose.

"I deeply regret the controversy caused by my appointment. I feel that there has got to be some unity on a city council for it to be effective," he added.

Wickham said he was sorry that he had to resign because of his attachment to the city.

"My involvement in Charleston goes back a number of years. I feel fortunate to be a participant in Charleston's growth," he said.

Wickham declined further comment concerning his resignation.

Pfeiffer, who said he did not want to accept the resignation, said Wickham had come "highly recommended" when the appointment was made. "The faith the people who recommended him to me was justified."

He added Wickham "certainly knew what he was doing and did an excellent job on the budget working with (City Clerk) Patsy (Loew)."

"He once told me that he thought our budget was too complicated, so he streamlined our budget," Pfeiffer said.

Pfeiffer added that he had no "inkling" that Wickham was planning to resign.

Commissioners also expressed regret over Wickham's resignation.

Commissioner John Beusch said he believed Wickham was brave for staying with the council until the legality question was cleared up.

Beusch said Wickham was a "very effective commissioner. It's tough to lose him—he did a good job."

He added that he hopes the council can find someone with Wickham's qualifications.

Commissioner Wayne Lanman noted a reason for concern. "I'm afraid that the controversy will keep very competent people such as Jim Wickham from running for office."

"It is the city of Charleston that will suffer in the long run," Lanman added.

Pfeiffer said, "We didn't always agree, but I always respected his opinion."

"It's a definite loss as far as running the city government is involved," he added.

Pfeiffer said he is uncertain whether the council will appoint another finance commissioner. "If we don't need to, I'm in favor of continuing with the ones (commissioners) we have."

He added that the city may hire a person to act as a "type of auditor" for the city. Pfeiffer added, "I was finance commissioner before so I can keep pretty good tabs on it (the finances) myself."

He added that if an appointment is made, the procedure will be a very thorough one.

City Attorney Tony Sunderman said he believes council has 30 days to select a new commissioner. He added that it is possible that getting a replacement for Wickham may not be necessary.

City balances '84 budget

The Charleston City Council managed to balance its fiscal year 1984 budget without making the suggested $1 million cut.

The council Tuesday unanimously approved balancing its fiscal year 1984 budget appropriations.

The FY 1984 budget now stands $10,019,325.08, Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer said. The council cut $516,864 from the budget.

Pfeiffer said the council avoided the $1 million cut suggested by former Finance Commissioner Jim Wickham because Wickham had "padded" the budget.

"Jim had the expenditures listed at more than they would actually cost. He also projected the revenues low," he said.

Pfeiffer added, "It is a balanced budget now."

In other business, the city council approved a 5 percent pay increase and cost of living adjustment for all city employees.

Pfeiffer said the pay raise was needed because the city employees "do a good job and deserve a raise."

Presidential interviews to begin

by Denise Skowron

The Board of Governors Presidential Search Committee will conduct a series of personal candidate interviews beginning Friday, BOG Director Donald Walters said.

The six-member committee, established to find former Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin's successor, will continue interviews of the 12 candidates through Sunday at the O'Hare Hilton Hotel in Chicago, he added.

All interviews, he added, will be conducted in executive session and no additional business will be addressed during the weekend's meetings.

Jeffrey Lynch, campus advisory committee chairman, said the candidates will visit Eastern during the next two months for individual on-campus interviews.

The BOG Presidential Search Committee will then consider the Campus Advisory Committee recommendations and reduce the number of candidates to three.

The remaining three candidates will be presented to the BOG for final selection.

TAC serves up hamburger exhibit to public

by Matthew Krasnowski

Aren't you hungry for an unusual art exhibit?

Hamburgers are available at the Tarble Arts Center, but they are for viewing, not dining pleasure.

The Grand Hamburger Art exhibit is currently on display at the TAC. The exhibit, consisting of 75 hand-crafted three-dimensional depictions of hamburgers in various shapes and sizes, was provided by high school students.

Some of the hamburgers have eyes, hands and tongues. Others are made of wood, brick or foam rubber. The makings of these hamburgers are hardly what could be called edible.

TAC Director Don Carmichael said a contest was started by former Eastern art instructor Rod Buffington and Eastern's art department to find different designs of hamburgers from high school art students across the country.

The works of 75 contestants from Illinois, Louisiana, New York, Nebraska, Colorado, Michigan and Ohio were chosen for the exhibit, which will travel across the United States.

"Buffington was searching for an image that was inexhaustible for creative work," Carmichael said. "He found that in the shape of a hamburger."

In addition, award-winning paintings and drawings will be joining the TAC's hamburger exhibit. The Mid-States Art Exhibition will be on display at the TAC Sunday, Carmichael said.

The exhibit consists of the 35 winning works from the Evansville Museum of Arts and Sciences annual art competition, Carmichael said.

The works were produced by a professional artists from the Midwest, he added.

The exhibits will be on display until August 7.

Also on display are the Brent Collins Sculpture exhibit and the Joliet Prison Photographs. They will both be on display until July 31.

Although the TAC does not offer a drive-up window, specialty glasses, salad bars or chicken sandwiches, they do have a full selection of art on their menu.

Emergency funds allocated for air conditioner repair

by Denise Skowron and Matthew Krasnowski

The Board of Governors Tuesday approved a $10,500 allocation for Eastern to repair the air conditioning in the old section of Booth Library, a BOG official said.

BOG Director Donald Walters said he called the emergency meeting, convened by telephone conference call, because the problem merited immediate attention. Because the estimated repair cost is in excess of $10,000, it mandated approval of the BOG.

"It was an emergency because there's over 3,000 students down there and it's the peak of summer," Walters said. "The repairs require rebuilding of the compressor and several parts."

George Miller, Eastern's vice president for administration and finance, said the Hunziker Train Company of Peoria was notified Wednesday morning "to proceed as soon as possible" with installation of new air conditioning units.

Physical Plant Director Everett Alms said the two air conditioning units in the old section of the library broke down Friday.

Alms said the compressors of both units are defective. A compressor "works like a big refrigerator," he added.

Repair work on one of the defective air conditioners began Wednesday, he said. However, repair work on the second air conditioner will not begin until next week.

Alms said although the second air conditioner needs parts that are not immediately available, repairs on both air conditioners should be completed by next week.

Wilson Luquire, director library services, said that the library workflow has not been significantly hindered.

"We've had to close down a few computers and some of the equipment," he said. "We've used our judgement."

Luquire said the equipment used by the public and the library staff has been affected.

In addition, library employees have rotated from the old and new sections throughout the day to make sure that no one is forced to endure the heat for entire day.

Alms said the library's air conditioning system was installed in the late 1950's and was last worked on in 1980.

Why is it that, on a hot July day, students in Coleman Hall have goose bumps on their bodies. . .

...while students in the Fine Arts Building are bathed in sweat. After all the complaints administrators have heard about uncomfortable classrooms and the wasteful practice of cooling buildings to 50 degrees, nothing has been done to correct the problem. What are we waiting for guys?

Viewpoint:

Summer school versus working; working wins

I have a tan.

While visiting Eastern this summer, I was blinded by the glare from the lily-white flesh waltzing around campus.

Are you guys really spending that much time in class or is Eastern's student body collectively suffering from a lack-of-pigment epidemic?

Whatever the case, my heart goes out to all you summer school albinos. Yes, having attended summer school once myself, I know what little time you have for the pleasures of the out-of-doors.

Students who think the summer session is a breeze have obviously never tried to cram eighteen weeks worth of academia into five or eight.

Summer in Charleston is not easy. Sweltering in the "air-conditioned" comfort of the classrooms can only be matched by the foodless marathons and penniless, boring evenings at home.

Yet, the summer experience isn't all bad. There is the bonus of better student-teacher ratios and intensified learning.

But those pluses can rapidly turn to minuses when you realize that attendance really is mandatory in the summer (if you are not there, you are missed) or when you have to read 14 chapters in one night.

And, its no use "sweating it out" in class, both you and the professor know that last night's heat forced you to abandon all those useless chapters and made you sneak over to Youngstowne pool for a dip.

Or, possibly, the heat forced you to visit a watering hole of another kind and you didn't make it to class at all.

However, those trips to watering holes are probably infrequent owing to the fact that most students are paying through the nose for their delightful summer school experience.

That brings us to another difference between those of us who are working and you suffering students. I have money.

Ah, isn't it fun, living off campus and stretching a five dollar bill into a week's worth of breakfasts, lunches and dinners?

Summer school has its good and bad points. You get out of the house and away from parental repression, but you also get away from the car, the central air and the $10 here and there to "tide you over."

Sure, working 8 to 5 is no picnic but that paycheck sure helps make it bearable. Summer school, on the other hand, has only one redeeming quality—weekends that start on Thursdays.

But remember, working people get to forget their jobs when they go home.

In school, when class is over, the pressures of homework begin.

Which brings us to another difference between you students and us non-students, I have my sanity.

Tennis addiction serves trials, traumas

I began to wonder about the effect tennis was having on me when I held a tennis ball in front of my nose for three hours.

I'd heard that Billie Jean King stares at one to improve her concentration, but when I tried her tactic, I became dizzy. My concentration didn't improve, and I began to see tennis balls everywhere I went.

Even more curious was my tendency to see the balls in pairs. I have nothing against a vision—I'm told that the religious folks have visions all the time—but a double vision can be disconcerting. It's difficult to hit a perfect ground stroke when you're unable to tell which ball is real.

Come to think of it, hitting the ball has always been my downfall; the Oriental playing style that I've adopted lends a sweet-and-sour flavor to my game, so I'm as likely to hit the ball on the wood as on the sweet spot. I also get yinned and yanged around the court quite a bit.

That's why I decided to imitate Jimmy Connors. He once said that he improves his performance by hating the tennis ball and by slapping his thighs on crucial points. When I tried this technique, the results were uninspiring. My thighs became sore, and the slapping became so conspicuous that I was forced to launch into a diatribe against mosquitos. As for the tennis ball, I focused my thoughts on someone I passionately disliked and had no difficulty directing hatred at it; unfortunately, the intensity of my hatred caused my volleys to sail over the fence and my drop shots to land on a nearby court.

What's more, thinking about someone I hated made it tough to be a gracious loser. "That was a good warm-up," I'd say in a weak attempt at nonchalance. "It should help me during the big match I've got tomorrow."

Speaking of losing, I hold a grudge against people who throw their racket in the air upon defeating me. Ostentatious glee is obnoxious. I've also noticed that people who throw their racket in the air delight in jumping over the net to shake hands, as if their every movement were being filmed for eternity. (More than once I've been tempted to raise the net just as they were jumping, but I'm also aware that I couldn't derive satisfaction from their resulting injury.)

Even when I'm just rallying with people, I'm often appalled by their crassness. It's as if they can find no pleasure in the exchange of artistic groundstrokes; every shot must represent a point for them to find any incentive. (Perhaps my objection is to Western Civilization's competitive mind-set.) In Fort Lauderdale, a city I was drawn to in the mistaken belief that Chris Evert's presence guaranteed its wholesomeness,

Crossviews:

John McMillan

I once played a 14-year-old who shouted "f---" as a part of his service motion. The single-mindedness of his quest for victory made me pity him—his ambition was aimed at something absurdly trivial—and, in pitying him, I let the match slip out of my grasp, 6-0, 6-0. (I've often noticed that I'm embarrassed by having an excessive lead—two games to one, for instance—and overcompensate by giving away several consecutive games.)

Another opponent who stands out in my memory was my childhood nemesis in Texas, a young man who planned to be a future president. He was fond of announcing before each match that he practiced the psychological ploys of "gamesmanship." He then whistled strategically between points, bounced the ball 15 times before each serve, and congratulated me on a good shot by asking, "How did you do that?"

The gambit, as he was desinged to trigger analysis within me, which in turn would generate self-doubt and, ultimately, paralysis. He was right. The more I thought about bending my knees or pivoting, the less I could act on those thoughts.

Still, I knew that my ground strokes—especially when my shots cleared the net—were superior to his, so I was stuck by the injustice of the outcome. It was as if the top seed at Wimbledon were humiliated by a brash, talentless tactician.

In the end, though, I can't blame my fate on talentless tactician. I have control my destiny in the sport, because I'm constantly reminded that tennis is a metaphor for life. In tennis, as in life, I always seem to lose at love; my faults have a way of doubting; I'm constantly engaged in a come-from-behind; I fail to comprehend the deviousness of shots that come my way; I need to play my own game and not by manipulated by others; I have to forget my miss-hits, and, in general, most of my problems are mental.

At this point, my goal is to reach a state of non-thinkingness in the game. By non-thinkingness, I mean a state that is being free from thinking, I'm not sure how I'll achieve this objective, but I'm confident that if I devote enough thought to the matter, success—and happiness—will be mine.

Excessive heat in Lantz causes fainting at service

by Matthew Krasnowski

Some members of the Christian and Missionary Alliance conference Life '83 fainted during sermons at Lantz Gym because of fatigue and excessive heat, conference physician Lewis Stocks said Wednesday.

At Sunday night's service, eight conference members fainted, Stocks said.

Monday night, three of the ten conference members who fainted were taken to Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center, he added.

The three were treated in the emergency room and released within an hour, he said.

The 3,200 members of the conference were assembled at the services.

"The majority of those who fainted were girls who had not been eating properly and were fatigued," Stocks said, adding that the intense heat at the gym also caused members to faint.

Stocks said the service location was not moved Monday night because conference officials had hoped Lantz would be cooler.

Life '83 Director Daryl Dale said although a blower fan was installed in the gymnasium during Monday's sermon, it did not counter the bodyheat generated by the audience.

Future services have been moved to O'Brien Stadium to avoid the excessive heat in the gym, he added.

Senate offers plus, minus ideas

by Douglas Backstrom

The Summer Student Senate Wednesday discussed whether a policy using plus and minus grade designations would benefit Eastern students.

If the policy is approved by the Council on Academic Affairs, students would receive more precise grades on their transcripts.

English instructor Pat Wright, author of the proposal, said recently that a plus and minus grading system would benefit students because the designations give a better indication of what the student has learned in class.

Financial Vice President Gail

Redeker said some senate and faculty members debated the proposal Wednesday at an "informal meeting."

Redeker said the senators argued that some Eastern students would have a difficult time raising their grades because of strict standards some instructors may set.

Redeker added that she will schedule a meeting with Faculty Senate Chariman Jeffrey Lynch to get his comments on the issue.

Senate member Dave Leezer suggested another policy, "a compromise," of eliminating minuses and keeping pluses.

Lindley to test Crane in 19th District race

by Sharon Bray

Democrat Tom Lindley formally has announced his candidacy for the nomination in the 19th U.S. Congressional District.

Lindley, a lawyer from Danville, announced his candidacy at the Coles County Airport Wednesday afternoon.

Lindley said he is running for Congress because "Dan Crane (the incumbent congressman) sits idly by while families in the district lose everything."

"Wherever I go in this district, I see factories closed, businesses shut down and families losing their farms. Unemployment is at double-digit levels and the interest rate is more than double the inflation rate," he said.

"Teachers are dismissed and there is a fear of nuclear holocaust. And I see Dan Crane doing nothing about it," Lindley said.

Tom Lindley

"Crane has not once passed a bill through Congress," he added.

"Mr. Crane is an embarrassment not only to this district but to the United States," Lindley said.

Lindley said our country has provided "more aid to more people than any other country in the world."

"We should demonstrate some of that same compassion to our friends and neighbors in this country," he added.

Lindley said the main problem with Crane, R-Danville, is that he is a "rich man's congressman."

"I know and share the concerns and interests of the hard-working people in the district, and I will prove that in my campaign," Lindley said.

"The farmers in this district have some of the finest farmland in the state, yet I see many foreclosures because of bad governmental economic policies," he added.

"We need to do something to preserve the family farm," he added.

He also said the national defense needs to be improved, but it must be done in a way that is cost-efficient.

If less money were spent on nuclear weapons, Lindley said "that would free up tens of millions of dollars for other things such as schools."

"We need funding for a strong educational system. We have to be able to teach our next generation to excel," he added.

Lindley said his plan for economic recovery would include implementing an "effective jobs program. Not one that created a few temporary jobs, but one that would concentrate on rebuilding the job market."

it from Title IV."

McKenna said that last year the financial aid office disbursed 3,139 guaranteed student loans, 1,920 pell grants, 471 supplemental grants and 624 work-study awards. Students receiving National Direct Student Loans totaled 668 and 1,656 received ISSC awards.

"Among those totals, though, there is some duplication where students were in two programs at once, so it's hard to get an actual head count of how many are involved," McKenna said.

Some students receive aid from programs such as General Assembly scholarships and Talented Student Awards, which are not classified under Title IV, she added.

In a letter received by the financial aid office, the U.S. Department of Education stated that beginning July 1 an institution has two ways to handle the situation.

The institution may require a statement of compliance from the student seeking financial aid or disburse the award first, and then inform the student of the requirement to file a statement.

Helmrich said beginning Aug. 1 an institution must receive a student's Statement of Registration Compliance prior to making initial or subsequent disbursements of any Title IV aid.

McKenna said Eastern's financial aid office has been requiring the compliance statement since July 1. "Even if a student was supposed to pick up an award before July 1 and didn't, we do require the statement to be completed before we give him the grant."

The new requirement has already caused a change in procedure for financial aid disbursements. McKenna said work-study employees who would receive a check at the end of this month will receive instructions to go to the financial aid office instead. They will then have to sign a statement before they will receive payment.

"All of the forms we are sending out for fall aid awards do include the compliance statement, which the student must sign if he expects to receive an award," she said.

McKenna said the financial aids office is currently "snowed under," because summer is the busiest time. She added the new registration compliance requirement will not necessarily cause a large increase in the workload.

"It doesn't affect us that much right now, but the computer center had to develop a whole new program for printing out the new forms we need." Also, McKenna's office is responsible only for collecting the necessary forms, not policing their validity.

"Our only obligation right now is to make sure each student has completed the compliance statement on financial aid forms. The federal government has the responsibility of making sure the statements are valid," McKenna said. "But beginning the 1984-85 award year each student will be required to show us proof of draft registration before we can process any financial aid request."

Helmrich said there will be no official policing action set up for the compliance regulation. "If someone who is not really registered signs a compliance form, it would be detected on routine audits of financial aid offices."

Proper action would then be taken against the offender "according to laws concerning official documents," he said.

Drop Deadline

The deadline for dropping an eight-week class is MONDAY, JULY 18, 4:30 P.M. A grade of "W" will be recorded for the class.

Michael D. Taylor
Director, Registration

Reapplication For Graduation

Any student who has applied for graduation for a future semester or summer term and then finds that he will be graduated either a semester or summer term earlier or later MUST make reapplication for graduation in the Records Office. There is no additional charge for reapplication. Reapplication must be accomplished no later than the published deadline of the new semester or summer term when he plans to graduate. For Fall Semester 1983 the deadline is Friday, September 2, 1983.

James E. Martin
Registrar

Unclear Records

The academic records for students who have outstanding obligations with such departments as Textbook Rental Service, Booth Library, Athletic Department, Financial Aids, Chemistry Department, Security, Housing, etc., will be marked unclear. Each student should check with all departments to clear all obligations prior to semester or summer term breaks and/or leaving the University permanently. Transcripts of the academic record of any student with an unclear record will be withheld and not sent to any one or any place. If the obligation is extremely serious or prolonged, it may result in a complete hold on a student's record which includes withholding grade reports and precludes readmission, registration, or graduation.

James E. Martin

Graduation Requirements Deadline

For a student to be considered a Summer Term 1983 graduate, ALL graduation requirements must be met by 4:30 p.m. on Friday, August 19, 1983. This means that any removals of incompletes, changes of grades, or an official transcript of academic work from another institution MUST reach Records Office by that date. If all requirements are not met, the student should reapply for graduation for Fall Semester 1983 no later than Friday, September 2, 1983.

James E. Martin
Registrar

Students who plan to take any work by correspondence MUST have that course approved in Records Office prior to enrolling for the course. Students should ask to see Mr. Conley or Mr. Martin to discuss taking work by correspondence.

James E. Martin
Registrar

Student Grade Reports

At the close of each grading period Student Grade Reports are mailed to the permanent addresses listed by the students — NOT the local addresses. Please be sure that you have requested a change of permanent address with Housing if there has been a change in your permanent address to which grades will be mailed.

James E. Martin
Registrar

Final Exam Changes

Students who have three final examinations scheduled for one day may file out a request for a change in the office of the Dean, Student Academic Services, Main 116. Forms for requesting a change are now available and must be submitted no later than Wednesday, August 3, 1983. Students are discouraged from requesting instructors to deviate from the published examination schedule. # 'Octopussy'

another classic James Bond epic

James Bond. The name brings thoughts of action, intrigue and romance to mind.

Bond is a special phenomenon in the cinema—the successful serial. He has been in the cinema for more than 20 years and has existed since his invention by author Ian Fleming.

The latest Bond epic, "Octopussy," contains everything that Bond fans have come to expect. A bevy of beautiful women accompany Bond across the globe to experience action, political intrigue, beautiful scenery and evil villains.

Roger Moore again plays the British Intelligence agent 007. Moore, superb in his portrayal, is actually beginning to look younger as the years go by.

In "Octopussy" Bond is opposed by Louis Jordan, who is playing both sides of the street to his own advantage.

Jordan, suave and calculated in his performance, provides the evil villain Bond needs to play against.

Maud Adams is perfect in the title role, and has the distinction of playing key roles in two of the best Bond films to date, "Octopussy" and "The Man with the Golden Gun."

Even Desmond Llewellyn, as the inimitable agent Q, has a key role in this film. He is humorous as well as smart, and has finally gotten the chance to be a vital part of the films he has helped to make so successful.

The plot begins when Octopussy, living on an island of women, has agent Q working for her. But he soon gets other ideas.

Q finds he has larger plans and masterminds a plan to gain power and wealth by trying to start a war between the United States and Russia.

The Russians are not convinced of the plan's validity and discontinue it. But not all of the Russian leaders agree; one considers starting the war to go down in history as a hero.

So Jordan and the Russian officer plant a bomb in a U.S. Air Force Base.

Bond finds out about the plot and proceeds to the base in disguise as a circus clown to find, and disengage, the bomb.

Bond does not disappoint his movie-going audience in the end—director John Glen has created another masterpiece. "Octopussy" is the best Bond film ever made.

"Octopussy" possibly contains more action than any other Bond film. In addition, the humor and intrigue of Bond make the film a classic in the spy-film genre that Bond created.

Horseshoe Club pitches at area park

by Kathy Leahy
Looking for something new and exciting to help pass those long summer days and evenings?

The Charleston Horseshoe Club may be just what you're looking for.

The club was started a more than a month ago when it became apparent that there was a growing interest in pitching horseshoes within the community, Jim Carey, club president, said.

"Pitching horseshoes is a lot of fun and a lot of people do it," Carey said. The community has taken to it pretty well, but not enough people know about it."

The Club currently has 30 members, including four or five Eastern students, Carey said.

"I'm sure there are a lot of Eastern students out there who pitch horseshoes," Carey said. "We want to let them know we're out here."

Carey said the club pitches from 6:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday and Thursday nights at Morton Park on Division and Lincoln Streets.

"You do not have to be a member of the club to come pitch with us," Carey said. "We're just out to have fun."

In addition, Carey said the club offers lessons for those interested in learning the art of pitching.

"We have instructors who will be more than happy to teach anyone who is interested," Carey said. "All they need to do is show up when we meet."

Carey said the club currently does not charge dues, but may initiate them in the future to help pay for supplies. He added that the dues would not exceed $2.

The club recently built 12 new horseshoe courts in Morton Park to replace the three old courts.

The project was funded by Charleston Township, because Morton Park is not a city park, Carey said.

"The courts are regulation size and to state standards," Carey said.

To celebrate the completion of the new courts, the club, in conjunction with the Charleston Recreation Department, will sponsor a horseshoe tournament Sunday.

The tournament's cost is $3 per entrant. Horseshoes will be supplied.

Carey said the tournament could be divided into six classes of competition, depending upon the number of participants.

"We aren't sure how many women will be able to attract," Carey said.

Carey said each person will be classified depending upon experience and ability.

Carey added that those participants who are not sure of their classification will be allowed to pitch to determine where they should be placed.

"We don't want someone to be in a higher or lower class than they should be," Carey said.

Anyone interested in entering the tournament may contact the Charleston Recreation Department at 345-6897 or Carey at 345-2241.

Those interested in joining the club may contact Carey or club vice-president Laurence Briggerman at 345-443.

The Cardinals announced the signing of rookie wide receiver Eric Smith and cornerback Greg Benton Wednesday. In addition, Cardinals' Public Relations Director Susie Mathieu said the Cardinals came to terms with rookie free agent Carlos Scott.

Scott, a center, arrived from St. Louis Wednesday night and was expected to sign a contract. Mathieu said Johnson was expected to start practice with the team Thursday. (News photos by Fred Zwicky)

Co-rec softball joins intramurals

by Gary Bray

Co-rec softball finally got under way this week despite scheduling difficulties.

All games scheduled from last Tuesday's proposed starting date were rescheduled and play began Monday.

The Hosers played the Rowdies in the opening game of the year, with the Hosers coming out on top with a score of 7-5.

In the second scheduled game, the Rowdies won by forfeit over the Summer Conference Staff.

Games scheduled for Tuesday were canceled because of the prior commitments of teams to other activities, intramurals secretary Kathy Ford said.

Ford said the games would not be considered a forfeit because the members of the Summer Conference Staff were assisting a visiting conference and could not attend the scheduled games.

Men's Softball

The Jaggs became the only undefeated team in the league Monday by beating the Housing Staff Infection 16-3.

The Jaggs also won their game Tuesday against PUPP by a close 7-6 score.

The Jaggs now have a 7-0 record and a 1½ game lead over Mu Ling's Riceballs, the second place team.

The Riceballs claim second place with a 5-1 record, their only defeat coming at the hands of the Jaggs last week.

The Riceballs won both their games this week, beating the Gee Spotters 12-11 and LAGNAF 9-8.

The Housing Staff Infection fell to third place this week after their loss to the Jaggs.

However, the Infection won 4-2 Tuesday against the Big Sticks and brought their record to 4-1.

The Huns won two games this week, raising their record to 3-1, fourth best in the league.

They defeated LAGNAF 14-3 and the Phi Sigs 24-5. LAGNAF remains the only winless team in the league, at 0-6.

The Phi Sigs won one game this week, upending Joint Effort 14-2 on Monday. The Phi Sigs are 3-4.

Joint Effort raised their record to 2-3, following their 6-2 win over the Untouchables Tuesday.

The Untouchables won their other game this week, defeating the Big Sticks 9-4. The Untouchables are 3-3, while the Big Sticks fall to 1-5.

The Gee Spotters won their third game of the year Monday when they beat PUPP 19-2. The win raises their record to 3-3. PUPP is 1-5.

Scheduled games for next Monday include Mu Ling's Riceballs vs. the Phi Sigs, PUPP vs. the Big Sticks and the Gee Spotters vs. LAGNAF.

In addition, the Housing Staff Infection will meet Joint Effort, the Huns will face the Untouchables and LAGNAF will square off against the Housing Staff Infection.

Men's Basketball

In Tuesday's action, Bad Company and Fast Break each retained undefeated records.

Bad Company beat Adam's Rib 93-32 to obtain the win. Adam's Rib falls to 1-2.

Fast Break ran their record to 3-0 when they won a forfeited game over the Jaggs. The Jaggs are now 0-3.

In the final Tuesday game, the Sixty-Niners beat the Phi Sigs 66-57 to move their record to 2-2. The Phi Sigs are winless in four tries.

Action is set to continue Wednesday night with the Nupes meeting the Jaggs, the G Force meeting Adam's Rib and Fast Break meeting Bad Company for the league's best record.

Men's Racquetball

Stan Roux, 1-1, won his first match of the year when he recently beat Kevin Flanagan by scores of 21-20, 21-15.

Chung Leong became the first two-match winner when he won a defaulted match over Jerome Cartledge.

Co-rec Volleyball

Matches originally scheduled for Tuesday night were rescheduled for Wednesday night. The Pace Setters met the Unknowns I.

USFL ends first season—so what?

The 18-game United States Football League regular season recently came to a close and four teams entered Saturday's playoffs.

Chicago, Michigan, Philadelphia and Oakland all advanced, with Philadelphia and Michigan winning the semi-final playoff games.

Philadelphia and Michigan will meet Sunday for the first league championship.

But in this rush of USFL excitement, the big question on the minds of most of the American people is who cares?

Herschel Walker, the only attraction the USFL had this season, did not lead his team to the playoffs.

However, Walker did win the league's first rushing title.

Walker picked up 1,812 yards on the ground in his first professional season. He carried the ball an incredible 412 times, 17 of those times for touchdowns.

But after Walker and Michigan receiver Anthony Carter, how many players can you name who played in the USFL this year?

Same here.

After all, who ever heard of somebody named Besana winning a passing title?

And who is this Johnson fellow who got so many receptions for the Chicago team. What's their name, the Blatz?

Personal file:

Gary Bray

It is extremely hard to get motivated to watch a game which is so uninteresting, untimely and unnecessary.

The USFL was a bad idea from the start. The league only succeeded in glutting the market with a product inferior to National League Football and in competition with National Basketball Association and major league baseball. The USFL has ensured its quick demise.

But Commissioner Chet Simmons is still talking about expanding the league.

What a joke.

I won't be interested in football until fall comes and the baseball season is over.

After all, baseball is still America's national pastime, no matter what football promoters say.

And as for football, give me Kenny Stabler and the NFL. That is the only true football league.

Old Joke Department: What are the last words of the Star-Spangled Banner?

Answer: Play ball!
